

CCFAA Preamble

We, as the delegate body of the Central California Fellowship, are the links in the chain of communication for and between our region and member groups. Though we operate at the local level, we should always be mindful of our affect on our society as a whole.

The delegates, committees, officers and staff are all trusted servants endowed with the right of decision, participation, and appeal to ensure an effective conscience and leadership. We rely upon the CCFAA Bylaws and Operating Procedures to manage and conduct our service. This service and leadership, handed down through our founders, is indispensable to our operation and our future.

All delegates shall take care that this body never becomes filled with perilous wealth or power; that it's financial principle be prudent; that no one is in a position of unqualified authority over another; that important decisions are reached by discussion, vote, and substantial unanimity if possible; that our actions are never individually punitive or publicly controversial; and like the society it serves, it remains always democratic in thought and action.

As trusted servants, it is our responsibility to maintain the unity of CCFAA, as well as to insure and allow our ultimate authority - a loving God- to express Himself through our group's conscience. Let us have patience and tolerance to listen while others share; the courage to speak up; and the wisdom to do what is right for our groups and our region as a whole.
